

Due Diligence

Henderson Risk Limited provides high-quality, individually-tailored products to support and guide our clients in the commercial decision-making process.

Our Insight & Investigations division comprises an in-house team working with a network of consultants and regional associates to gather information unavailable through commercial channels and open sources.

HRL conducts commercially sensitive research and analysis on competitors, potential partners and new markets in support of our clients' strategic needs and decision-making, with a particular emphasis on supporting investors and companies working in emerging markets where reliable information can be harder to come by. We delve behind public statements and relationships to discover what key individuals, businesses and stakeholders really think and how they can be expected to act.

Our findings then form the basis of recommendations and reports of real commercial value to assist in a client's decision-making process.
