

Maritime Security

Piracy continues to pose a significant threat to shipping operations and pirates are becoming more determined, better armed and more violent than ever before. Piracy costs ship-owners, operators, insurers and traders billions of dollars each year.

The HRL Maritime Planning and Consultancy Team draws upon extensive industry and maritime experience and enjoys close links with the main London-based maritime insurers and underwriters.

We can respond rapidly to any request across the globe to provide a broad range of professional maritime security services, which are underpinned by extensive experience and close relationships with the leading Port Authorities and Maritime Service providers.
